Dear Neil

Please find below clarification that Yorkshire Water is licensed to treat water and sewage for the region and as such are the designated undertakers.

"Yorkshire Water only accepts Domestic Waste under an exemption from the waste management licensing regime under the Environmental Protection Act 1990. This exemption requires Yorkshire Water to ensure only approved carriers transport Domestic Waste to Yorkshire Water's waste water treatment works and that no waste contaminated with trade effluent is accepted at authorised disposal points. No discharge of tankered Domestic Waste should be made to sewer. Before any waste is taken to an authorised Yorkshire Water waste water treatment works the carrier must be registered with the Environment Agency under the terms of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and authorised in writing by Yorkshire Water to discharge to that works. Samples and proof of source may be requested at any time and Yorkshire Water reserves the right to refuse any load which in its opinion is likely to be contaminated"

Further information and advice can be obtained from the Business Development Team, please ask for Mrs Julie Broadhead

Yours sincerely
